Are you a visionary scholar-leader and committed public intellectual who is passionate about social change?

Be an architect of change with regional impact in the American Southwest!

As faculty director of Arizona State University’s Center for the Study of Race and Democracy, you will lead and partner with faculty and staff across ASU and with community leaders and alumni to set the agenda for ASU’s substantive involvement in regional activities focused on race and democracy, resulting in impactful discourse.

ASU is a comprehensive public research university, recently named #1 in the United States for innovation. As noted in our charter, “we measure our success not by whom we exclude, but rather by whom we include and how they succeed; advancing research and discovery of public value; and assuming fundamental responsibility for the economic, social, cultural and overall health of the communities we serve.”

Based on ASU’s Downtown Phoenix campus, the Center for the Study of Race and Democracy is doing leading-edge work to bring together ASU and the greater community to promote unity and understanding across cultural and racial boundaries and involve more individuals in participatory democracy.

The Center for the Study of Race and Democracy is one of only a few organizations in the United States that promotes scholarly research, interdisciplinary study, advocacy, and —most importantly —forums to engage the greater community in respectful discourse and debate on timely issues related to race and democracy.

Through ambitious programming that includes community dialogs, high-profile lectures, solutions-oriented workshops and special events, the Center draws individuals into a setting where diversity, civil dialog, and guided discussion can contribute to:

- the dismantling of myths and stereotypes about race, ethnicity, gender, culture, economic class, immigrant status, sexual orientation and dis/ability.
- an understanding of our common humanity and how we all can become architects of change.
- recognition, understanding and alleviation of systemic racism, privilege and power

Its annual Delivering Democracy Lecture, held off-campus in downtown Phoenix, has attracted upwards of 10,000 participants since its inception in 2014. Featured speakers have included Forest Whitaker, Anderson Cooper, and Viola Davis.

The Center’s efforts benefit from roughly 5,000 volunteer hours contributed annually by members of the advisory board, college and university students, and community members.
The Center’s administrative home is within ASU’s College of Integrative Sciences and Arts. The college develops master learners, interdisciplinarians, and integrative solution-makers who are future-ready, through degree programs that emphasize innovative teaching and applied learning.

Committed to access, we work to meet students where they are in their educational journey and geographically — serving many students whose life situations, responsibilities, or distance may not allow them a traditional undergraduate experience.

We are honored to be the home college for more than 6,500 students enrolled in our degree programs at ASU’s Polytechnic, Downtown Phoenix, and Tempe campuses; at The Colleges at Lake Havasu City, and through ASU Online, as well as in partnership programs with community colleges in the region (ASU@TheGilaValley, ASU@Pinal, ASU@Yuma). The College of Integrative Sciences and Arts is also home to ASU’s Exploratory students, who are in the process of career exploration, major selection or transition.

Our flexible degree programs as well as ASU Online degrees and iCourses help students in Arizona and beyond gain access to educational opportunity that may help them build a better life for themselves and their families.

Our faculty engage in research, clinical and creative activities that support knowledge development, applied practice and involve students in discovery. We collaborate and partner with every college at ASU through general studies support, interdisciplinary studies concentration areas, student success and retention efforts, and access initiatives.

Phoenix, a cosmopolitan city in the Sonoran Desert, is ringed by mountains and enjoys approximately 300 days of sunshine a year. Sky Harbor International Airport is one of the 10-busiest in the nation for passenger traffic. With non-stop flights to many markets, you are roughly one to five hours from most major U.S. cities — and a six-hour drive from Los Angeles and San Diego.

Required Qualifications

We are seeking to hire a distinguished scholar with a terminal degree and a record of research and publication in race, ethnicity, social justice issues, or related field(s) that will qualify the individual to hold the rank of full professor at ASU. The successful candidate must have a record of public outreach and effective teaching, and a demonstrated ability to be successful in fundraising.

Desired Qualifications

Prior administrative experience directing a center or equivalent unit; record of community organizing.
Application Procedure:
To apply, visit https://cisa.asu.edu/jobs and upload your application as one combined .pdf document under job number 11784. Only electronic submissions will be reviewed. Incomplete applications will not be considered. Applications must contain:

- A letter of interest outlining their scholarly agenda and qualifications and experience as it relates to the position
- Curriculum vitae
- Evidence of teaching effectiveness including two sets of student evaluations at the postsecondary level
- Information for three professional references (their position, title, e-mail, phone number)

The review of applications will begin on 12/14/2016 at 5pm; and if not filled, reviews will occur each Friday thereafter and will continue until the search is closed. A background check is required prior to employment. Official transcripts must be submitted prior to first day of employment. For technical assistance with your application contact cisajobs@asu.edu, for position-related questions contact Search Committee Chair Dr. Ian Moulton at Ian.Moulton@asu.edu.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. For a complete statement of ASU’s nondiscrimination statement, refer to https://asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html; and see ASU’s Title IX policy at https://www.asu.edu/titleIX/.

ASU offers applicants an opportunity to voluntarily self-disclose information for the University affirmative action plan; applicants may complete an EEO survey for the position they are applying for online. Information you will need to complete the survey: Job Number: 11784; Job Title: Director, CSRD; Department Name: College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

General Information: Arizona State University is a comprehensive public research university recently named #1 in the United States for innovation, followed by #2 Stanford and #3 MIT. We measure our success not by whom we exclude, but rather by whom we include and how they succeed; advancing research and discovery of public value; and assuming fundamental responsibility for the economic, social, cultural and overall health of the communities we serve. ASU’s College of Integrative Sciences and Arts is home to innovative teachers who are guided by educational access, student success, applied learning, and interdisciplinary inquiry. We understand there are many paths to achieving a university education, and we build undergraduate and graduate degree programs and pathways that are flexible and relevant for a rapidly changing world. To learn more about ASU and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts go to: http://about.asu.edu/ and http://cisa.asu.edu. HPC 1317 P211376